NATHAN'S THREE EASY STEPS FOR WINTER PLANTING

1. Dig the planting hole 2-3x as wide as the rootball. Providing the rootball with as much width as possible will help it to establish faster.
2. Dig the planting hole 1x as deep as the rootball. Generally, plant roots only grow in about 8-18" below the soil. Planting "proud", or slightly above the soil, is also acceptable and sometimes necessary. Planting too deep, however, can be detrimental.
3. Soften the backfill soil as much as possible. Be sure to chop large clods so that they are no larger than 1" in diameter before backfilling. A soft soil has proven to be more beneficial than adding soil amendments in the planting hole.
